TARIFF TINKERING VS. TARIFF REVI-SION

The effect of the recent tariff controver cannot be otherwise than beneficial. It has shown the ways of politicians and demonstrated the influence of monied interests. It has developed the real sentiment of the publie and brought out the necessity of a business method of revising the tariff. It has made manifest the difference between tariff tinkering by politicians and tariff revision by men guided by a fixed policy and governed by an undeviating purpose. The country has experienced a costly demonstration of the first, and if any other tariff revision is needed the public will insist upon the adoption of the Labor creates wealth, but wealth is utilized to give employment to labor, and capitalists will not invest when the market is fluctuating or the stability of trade and commerce is threatened by ill-advised laws or an unsafe system of legislation. The American method of creating laws is popular and satisfactory so long as it is confined to ordinary legislation, but when it comes to questions o finance and the tariff, where the prosperity of the country is involved, it lacks that pains taking research and investigation necessary to a full knowledge of those important meas-

Both the tariff and finance are primarily the basis of prosperity when regulated by wise and prudent methods. The one provides revenue for governmental purposes and the other furnishes money for the trans action of business. Therefore when laws are enacted that effect either the tariff or finances their preparation should be placed in the hands of experts who thoroughly understand the fundamental principles of each of these economic questions. The necessity of this precaution must be apparent. When industries do not thrive, trade becomes stagnant. When the demand lessens, wage-earn ers suffer; when business depression exists money becomes scarce, and we have only to look back on the past year to understand

Next time the tariff is revised let it be done by a commission of experts and not by a committee whose time is partly taken up by other important duties. The labors of Congress men are many. They are harassed and importuned on every side and have neither time nor opportunity for close and careful study. The differences of opinion also largely influence the preparation of a tariff bill and make it a patchwork work of compromises, none of which would govern the deliberations of a commission. There are other reasons which might be given why commissions should prepare all our tariff and finance laws.

COXEY IN WASHINGTON.

Coxey is in Washington. He has been here before and that accounts for his unexpected, unsolicited physical presence. He came here with a misguided army of road-walkers. and as commander of that army the gallant Coxey rode in a carriage at the head of hi conquering host and was called "General." He had more than enough sense not to wear a hat adorned with a rooster's feather, but the gray matter in his cranium was not of sufficient strength to prevent his making jassack of himself in other respects.

Coxey came here the first time to compel Congress to pass his "good roads" bill, even if every man in the Coxey army had to be sacrificed but himself. After several months of vigorous campaign on the borders of Washington he found that Congress would not surrender, and as the public refused to longer support him the valiant Coxey withdrew from his starving army and retreated in good order, protected by the luxurious furnishings of a Pullman car. His army, poor fellows, deserted by their leader, were arrested and sent to the workhouse.

By some chemical process Coxey's brain generated the idea that "generals" are cowards who retreat and leave their armies in distress, and since he is a candidate for Congress to be called a coward might lose him votes. To prevent, then, that awful catasstrophe Coxey patronized Pullman again and is now here in Washington. Of course, he will be received by the people of Washington with open arms and chants of praise.

Coxey is above the ordinary type of individual, so far above, that like other great minds that depend upon machinery for motive power, his theories and projects are in the clouds, far away from earthly comprehension. But that is not Coxey's fault, nor is he responsible for his wheels nor his genius, that prouts tremendous thoughts and grows ponderous impossibilities. Coxey has only one fault, and that is of living. If some sweet, angelic power would softly, gently waft him away, even the winds would murmur gratitude, for he interferes with their business.

THE PYTHIAN ENCAMPMENT

The Knights of Pythias, who will assemble in Washington in martial array during the last week of this month, may feel assured of a hearty and spontaneous welcome from the citizens of the Capital. Washington is proverbially hospitable, and no stranger need foar that he will not be made to feel at home.

To the business men and merchants of the city the encampment will mark the end of a dull season, and the opening of one which it is to be hoped will prove profitable and successful in every way. Thousands of strangers will be attracted to Washington during the encampment, all of whom will come prepared to spend money and enjoy themselves. They may feel assured that no advantage will maintain her proud reputation of the most delightfut city for the holding of large gatherings and make all regret they do not permanently reside on the banks of the puriing Potomac.

LINABURG RELEASED.

No Evidence to Show that He Told Williams to Kill Twigg. Capt. Henry W. Linaburg, of the canal boat lvy City, yesterday passed through probably the most trying experience of his life, when he was tried in police court on the charge of ordering the killing of William H. Twigg by Frank Williams, Linaburg was acquitted, and then a dramatic scene occurred in the courtroom. His matic scene occurred in the country, a hysterical manner. Finally all were quieted, and surrounded by his relatives and friends Linaburg left the courtroom. It was shown before Judge Mills by Lawyer Albert Sillers, Linaburg's counsel, that the accused was so drunk at the time the erime was committed as to be incapable of giving any orders. Thomas Nuce, a young man who was steering the boat, said he saw Twigg leave the boat, and he told Mrs. Lina-burg that Twigg had taken the whip. Mrs. Linaburg sent William for the whip, and in Inhabity sent without for the wife, and it a few minutes he returned and got the gun. No one gave him the gun nor did they know about the shooting until some time afterward. After the shooting Williams got on the boan and rode for several minutes before finally starting away. Mrs. Linaburg was not permitted to testify on account of her relationship to the prisoner. Assistant District Attorney Mullowney told Judge Mills that the government had no case against Linaburg, and consented to his release, which was granted.

Secretary Smith denies that he is a proper party to the mandamus procedure and also denies the court's jurisdiction. Commissioner Lochren avers in his reply that the Michigan justice is entirely able to perform such manual labor as may be performed usually by a one-armed person, except that involving such mus-cular action as to carry a strain upon his hip wound, and that the present rate of pension is all that Judge Long is entitled to. The Commissioner likewise asserts that the court is without jurisdiction.

Punished for Abandoning His Child. For abandoning his infant, as was published in THE TIMES on Sunday last, Leslie C. Sebree, of Norfolk, a sewing machine agent, was yesterday sentenced by Judge agont, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Mills to pay a fine of $100, or in default to serve ninety days in jail and to be imprisoned for thirty days additional.

Sebree and his wife Lydia had been arrested by Policeman G. W. Neale at the instigation of the Humane Society.

After hearing the evidence Judge Mills decided that as the abandonment of the child had occurred with the full knowledge and consent of the father there was a doubt as to the responsibility of the mother in the matter and he released Mrs. Sebree.

thorities, and they have since been languishing in durance ville.

The warrant does not name the persons to be arrested, except in one case, that of C. T. Mc-Kee, nor does it charge any offense known unto the laws of the Stste Maryland. The petition sets forth that the Arthur Carr, who issued the warrant is not a justice of the peace, and it states that on the same day Carr issued a second warrant identical in all respects with the first, except that the name of Charles D. Harford was subscribed for that of C. T. McKee. It recites that certain persons who were not officers of the law, arrested all of the seventy-two persons mamed in the petition, and that they were carried before Arthur Carr for a hearing at 4:30 in the morning.

SO-CALIBE TRIAL A FARCE.

SO-CALLED TRIAL A PARCE. The affidavit of Gen. Coxey states that the o-called trial was a farce, that no complaint was charged against the prisoners, that they them, or of any offense they had committed, that they were not given a hearing, that they were not asked whether they were guilty or not guilty, that they were not given a chance to procure attorney or witnesses, that no witnesses were sworn on behalf of the State, and that they were in fact railroaded to the house of correction for no cause or offense, and without being given a chance to protest.

for no cause or offense, and without being given a chance to protest.

The arguments on the motion for the writ will be made this morning by Lawyer J. H. Raiston. The writ will be made returnable on Saturday or Monday, when all the prisoners will be brought into court, and when the motion for their discharge will be argued.

"Gen." Cozey will return to Massillon to-day, after the writ is obtained. He sent back yesterday to his home a number of the extra horses which he brought here for his camp.

He went out to the house of correction at Jessup's yesterday and told his men that he purposed to have them released on habeas conjust proceedings. They were greatly pleased by what Cozey told them.

Carl Browne is expected to return in a few days to join the camp.

The Commissioners' decision was communicated to the men in the camp yesterday by Major Moore, chief of police.

The campers had scant fare yesterday. They said no supplies had been sent in and niere than half of them went to grase hungry last night, although none of them passed the day entirely without food.

The eighty-eight Coxeylies who were committed by Justice Carr, of Hyattsville, to the Maryland house of correction as vagrants were yesterday put to work building good roads for the State. They are to widen the roads leading from the institution, and this will give them plenty to do for the full term of their imprisonment.

Chase Electric Railway are vigorously pushing the project for the construction of the short line from Kensington to the power-house. The sum of $10,000 has been already subscribed to the slock, and canvassers waited upon the chizous of Kensington yesterday to solicit the balance. It was expected that the balance would be taken so that report might be made to a meeting held lest evening, and in that case President Newlands will at once contract to put the line under construction and to furnish the power to run it upon its completion. The proposed link is about two miles in length.

With this extension completed, Kensington, Capital View, Garrett Park, and other suburban points will be brought into cose connection by electric railway with Washington, and should pending legislation regulating the car fares be perfected, the cost will be but 14 cents per passenger for the round trip.

the president. The company, she said, was perfectly willing to have a full and fair investigation, but by responsible people. She said that the figures given in THE TIMES yesterday were sufficient to show that the company was making progress, and that the transactions, the margins were too small for any one to entertain the idea that the president could have appropriated $10,000.

The idea was preposterous. She said that it was a fact that the president had paid $10.000 cash on the purchase of the steamer; that he had accepted $10.000 in stock therefor, and that it was really nobody's business where Patterson got the money. And so the case now stands, Dryden Seeks a Mandamus Littleton T. Dryden, formerly shipping com-missioner at the port of Baltimore, filed a polimissioner at the port of Baltimore, filed a poli-tion yesterday in the supreme court for a writ of mandamus to compel Secretary of the Treas-ury John G. Carliste to restore him to his former position as shipping commissioner at Battimore and to withdraw the applatment of Archibeld Kirwin as his (Dryden's) successor. He bases his demand on the interpretation of the statute which authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to appoint a shipping commissioner to ports where he deems one is needed, and to remove him whenever he fails to conduct his office prop-erly. He maintains that he has conducted his office in an emineanty fitting mainten, and offers to produce witnesses whose testimony cannot be omce in an emission mining manner, and offers to produce witnesses whose testimony cannot be impeached to prove the facts. Judge Cole is-sued an order commanding Secretary Carlisle to appear August 21 and show cause thy the prayer of the petition should not be granted.
